PROGRESS REPORT ON COMBATING TERRORIST FINANCING

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

October 11, 2001

When the President opened the financial front in the battle against global terrorism, he galvanized all agencies of the federal government to work together at a greater level of cooperation than ever before. Intelligence and law enforcement agencies are sharing information to identify and pursue individuals connected to terrorism. The Treasury and State Departments are working together to build an international coalition to disrupt the financing of terrorism. Results to date:

- Since September 11, the United States has frozen nearly $4 million in assets belonging to the Taliban, Usama bin Laden and the al Qaeda network, and several million in additional assets are under review.

- We've seen unprecedented cooperation from around the world. 102 countries have committed to joining the effort to disrupt terrorist assets and 62 countries already have put blocking orders in force. Nations around the world have frozen more than $24 million is assets since September 11.

- Treasury hosted a special meeting of the G7 Finance Ministers last Saturday. The seven nations pledged cooperation and announced a joint action plan under which:
  - The G-7 calls on all countries to establish functional Financial Investigative Units (FIUs) as soon as possible.
  - The G-7 countries will all join the Egmont Group, which promotes cooperation between national FIUs, and turns around information sharing requests as expeditiously as possible and will facilitate information sharing agreements between nations.
  - The Egmont Group will meet in Washington later this month to further their coordination efforts.

- At the request of the G-7, the Financial Action Task Force (a group of 29 countries) will hold an extraordinary plenary meeting in Washington D.C. later this month. The G-7 called on the FATF to focus on specific measures to combat terrorist financing, including:
  - Issuing special FATF recommendations and revising the FATF 40 Recommendations to take into account the need to fight terrorist financing, through methods including increased transparency;
  - Issuing special guidance for financial institutions on practices associated with the financing of terrorism that warrant further action on the part of affected institutions;
  - Developing a process to identify jurisdictions that facilitate terrorist financing, and making recommendations for actions to achieve cooperation from such countries.

- The US Government has communicated with every country about participation in a global coalition to disrupt terrorist financing. Top Treasury officials have spoken directly with 29 Finance Ministers to discuss specific actions. All have been cooperative.

- Treasury officials attended the Caricom (a group of Caribbean nations) meeting today to discuss ongoing cooperation in disrupting the financial infrastructure of terrorism.

- Specific examples of action since September 11 include:

  - the Dutch have blocked two accounts worth $550,000 of assets associated with bin Laden and the al Qaeda organization.
  - The Bahamas blocked accounts connected to the recent terrorist attacks.

- The US Government will provide technical assistance to cooperating governments in the full range of efforts to combat terrorists' financial activities.

- US Financial institutions have responded to Treasury requests and volunteered information to identify patterns of terrorist financing.

- Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network has set up an 800 number so that financial institutions professionals can call when they see a particularly suspicious transaction. The 800 number receives an average of 15 calls per day.

(3) the most effective programs for the assistance of homeless veterans should be identified and expanded;

(4) federally funded programs for homeless veterans should be held accountable for achieving clearly defined results;

(5) Federal efforts to assist homeless veterans should include prevention of homelessness; and

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00202892

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00202910

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00202928

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00202945

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00202963

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00202980

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00202998

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00203016

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00203033

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00203050

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

REV_00203067

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

REV_00203084

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

AMERICA'S FUND FOR AFGHAN CHILDREN

THE PROGRAM

After years of war, drought and rule by the repressive Taliban regime, Afghanistan faces a major humanitarian crisis. In particular, the most vulnerable Afghans – the more than 10 million children – are suffering.

Americans are concerned about the welfare of Afghan children and wish to reinforce the fact that America's actions are focused on destroying a terror network and are not directed against the innocent people and children of Afghanistan.

In response to the outpouring of humanitarian concern by Americans, the President has announced the creation of "America's Fund for Afghan Children," which will encourage children and their families to contribute to relief efforts for Afghan children. In particular, it is hoped that the children of America will be inspired to make contributions of one dollar – or whatever they can give -- which can be sent individually or collectively to the Fund.

The new Fund builds on the recent announcement by President Bush of $320 million in additional aid to help meet the food and relief needs of Afghans this winter.

THE PLIGHT OF THE AFGHAN CHILDREN

More than 10 million children in Afghanistan have suffered under years of civil war and drought and now suffer under the repressive Taliban regime:

- Afghanistan ranks number one worldwide in maternal mortality.
- One in four Afghan children will not make it to their fifth birthday.
- One in three Afghan children is an orphan.
- Almost ½ of Afghan children suffer chronic malnutrition.
- Millions face the threat of starvation.

BUILDING ON A HISTORY OF SUCCESS

The President's new initiative to assist Afghan children is modeled on the original 1938 March of Dimes campaign from the Roosevelt Administration. In that successful campaign, President Franklin Roosevelt appealed to American children to each donate a dime to help eradicate polio. The effort succeeded not only in raising funds for the effort that defeated polio, but also in generating significant interest among American youth at helping others in need. The original campaign was a grassroots effort, supported by the leadership of the President of the United States.

HOW THE PROGRAM WILL WORK

America's Fund for Afghan Children
c/o The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave., NW.
Washington, DC, 20509-1600.

FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVES PLEASE VISIT WWW.WHITEHOUSE.GOV

REV_00203101

The White House has created a special zip code to help identify and expedite donations to the Fund. The White House will send the contributions to the American Red Cross (ARC), which will administer the program. To ensure maximum coordination with the humanitarian relief effort, the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) will consult with the American Red Cross on disbursements from the Fund.

The American Red Cross will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to process the contributions and manage the fund, assume accountability for its appropriate use (in consultation with USAID), post the results of the effort on its official web site and provide ongoing updates to the White House.

The American Red Cross will aid Afghan children through direct programs in the region, as well as through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the appropriate Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies. The American Red Cross will also provide grants to other organizations engaged in charitable works for Afghan children. Through these programs, needed food, shelter and medicines will be provided to the children of Afghanistan.

The Fund will help not only Afghan children living in Afghanistan but also those who are now refugees in neighboring countries. The ARC will use its existing fundraising and administrative structure to receive donations and will manage the Fund in an account segregated from their other operating accounts. The ARC will absorb all overhead costs so that every dollar contributed by the American people to the Fund will directly benefit Afghan children.

Thanks to you two for doing a great job organizing the Miguel Estrada pre-event in the Indian Treaty Room and for including him prominently in the Hispanic Heritage event. I think it went quite well and was very helpful for his nomination (and for the President, I believe); the icing on the cake, of course, was the President's forceful statement on Estrada's behalf at the main event in the East Room. This all should help tremendously as we move forward and seek a hearing for Estrada in the near future. Thanks again.

Section 216 of the House bill, relating to pen registers and trap and trace devices, adds about a page and a half of text which does not appear in the Senate version, running from p. 39, line 7, to p. 40, line 16.
This is a provision prepared by the DAG's office and inserted via Leader Armey to give comfort to the "Carnivoids" (a term I just made up now to describe those who are paranoid about Carnivore).

Thanks.

Not that, during the House debate on Friday, section 302, 303, and 304 of the House bill were deleted, eliminating some of the duplication to which Brett refers

Primary Differences Between House and Senate Bills
(October 15, 2001)

(1) Section 203 of the House bill requires post-sharing notification to the court for grand jury information.

(2) Section 216 of the House bill modifies the pen/trap provisions consistent with Congressman Armey's proposal.

(3) Section 223 of the House bill contains a version of Congressman Frank's proposals relating to civil liability and disciplinary action based on surveillance activities.

(4) Section 224 of the House bill sunsets most of title II.

(5) The House bill does not incorporate title III of the Senate Bill, which is entitled "International Money Laundering Abatement and Anti-terrorist Financing Act of 2001." It substitutes a brief title III entitled "Financial Infrastructure," containing a few provisions which mostly duplicate provisions appearing in title VIII.

(6) Title IV of the House bill (relating to immigration) has a subtitle C relating to victims of terrorism that has no counterpart in the Senate bill.

(7) Section 412 of the House bill requires reconsideration of the detention of terrorist aliens who are not removed every six months, and consolidates habeas review in the D.C. Circuit.

(8) Title V of the House bill omits the McDade fix (section 501 in the Senate Bill).

(9) Title VIII of the House bill omits the biological weapons section (section 802 in the Senate bill).

(10) The House bill adds a "miscellaneous" title X at the end, containing two sections that have no counterpart in the Senate bill. Section 1001 directs the Department to pay $250,000 in compensation to the estates of the U.S. citizen victims of the African embassy bombings (subject to appropriations) so long as they waive their right to sue in court. Section 1002 is a scaled-down version of the "Review of the Department of Justice" section of the House Judiciary Committee bill, requiring the designation of an official by the Inspector General to receive alleged civil rights and civil liberties abuses by Department personnel.

1. There are 106 current vacancies in the federal courts (31 circuit court and 75 district court), which is almost 50% higher than the vacancy rate two years ago when many Democratic Senators, including Senator Leahy, complained loudly about a vacancy crisis. 41 of these vacancies have been formally classified as judicial emergencies by the nonpartisan Judicial Conference of the United States. This is the highest vacancy rate since 1994.

2. President Bush has nominated judges to fill these vacancies at a record pace. To date, he has nominated 59 judges to the lower federal courts, which compares to 47 in the entire first calendar year of President's Clinton's first term, 23 in President George H.W. Bush's, and 44 in President Reagan's. President Bush's first 11 nominations were sent to the Senate on May 9, 2001, more than two months earlier than any of the previous three presidents in their first years.

3. Despite the high level of vacancies and the record pace of nominations, the judiciary has actually shrunkduring the months since President Bush took office, i.e. the number of vacancies has increased and we have moved backward in our effort to bring the judiciary up to full strength. There were 82 (27 circuit court and 55 district court) vacancies on inauguration day, and 99 vacancies on May 9 when President Bush submitted his first nominations. There are now 106 vacancies. The Senate has confirmed only 6 judges during this year. This compares to an average of 32 judges confirmed prior to October 1 in the years between 1981 and 2000. President Bush has been doing more than his part to resolve the vacancy crisis; the same cannot be said of the Senate.

4. In the first years of each of the past three presidencies, Republican and Democrat alike, 100% of all nominations sent to the Senate before the August recess were confirmed before the end of the calendar year. (The only exception was a single Clinton district court nominee, who was rated "not qualified" by the ABA and confirmed the following year.) President Bush submitted 44 nominations prior to the August recess.

5. Of the President's 11 initial nominations, which were submitted on May 9, only 3 have even received a hearing. All received either the highest or second highest rating available from the ABA, and all have had their paperwork complete for many months. 8 were for formal judicial emergencies.

6. Chairman Leahy has not held hearings during many weeks when candidates were ready. (The suggestion that he could not hold hearings during the Senate reorganization is bogus; other committees held confirmation hearings on 44 administration nominees during that same period.) When he has held a hearing, he has had many fewer nominees per panel than has been traditional. In the 106th Congress, under GOP control, there were 5.04 nominees per hearing. Through October 3rd of the 107th, under Democratic control, there were 2.33 nominees per hearing.

DRAFT – NOT FOR RELEASE

October 24, 2001
(House)

H.R. 3090 – Economic Security and Recovery Act of 2001
(Rep. Thomas (R) California)

The Administration supports House passage of H.R. 3090. The Administration is pleased that the House has started the process of acting on a tax stimulus package to help get the economy going again.

The Administration is very pleased that the bill includes the main tax relief components that the President has proposed: (a) tax relief for low-to-moderate income individuals and families and an acceleration of scheduled tax rate cuts to spur consumer spending and restore confidence; and (b) increased business expensing and repeal of the corporate Alternative Minimum Tax to encourage investment and create jobs. The bill contains additional items that make it broader than what the President proposed.

The Administration commends the fact that this bill is focused primarily on tax relief, since ample attention has already been paid to spending. Over sixty billion dollars has been passed or proposed, including monies for disaster relief, security enhancements, and defense. The President has also announced a Back to Work Relief proposal and looks forward to working in a bipartisan fashion with Congress to enact it. This is enough spending -- stimulus should come via tax relief.

The Administration urges quick action on this vehicle in the Congress to enable an economic stimulus package to go into effect as quickly as possible. The Administration remains committed to working with the Congress in a bipartisan manner to produce a fiscally responsible end product consistent with the President's principles to help consumers, spur investment, and contribute to the recovery from the terrorist attacks of September 11th.

Pay-As-You-Go Scoring

Any law that would reduce receipts or increase direct spending is subject to the pay-as-you-go requirements of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act. Accordingly, H.R. 3090, or any substitute amendment in lieu thereof that would reduce revenues or increase direct spending, will be subject to the pay-as-you-go requirement. OMB's scoring estimates are under development. The Administration will work with Congress to ensure that any unintended sequester of spending does not occur under current law or the enactment of any other proposals that meet the President's objectives.

I have not been giving any written advice. I routinely state that no papers may be taken (which is, as you know, on the very conservative side); except for the occasional question about taking the staff directory, everyone purports to cooperate with this advice. The advice is accompanied by my statements that everything that goes on here is sensitive, so shut-up or forget everything. I also give post-employment advice. At some point, it would probably be a good idea to give departing employees something in writing.

TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE

Testimony of the Honorable Paul H. O'Neill
Secretary of the Treasury

Before the Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs
United States Senate

Mr. Chairman, Senator Gramm, and Members of the Committee, I appreciate the opportunity to comment on terrorism risk insurance. These hearings are extremely important. We believe that there is a real and pressing need for Congress to act on this issue now. As I will discuss in more detail, market mechanisms to provide terrorism risk insurance coverage have broken down in the wake of September 11. Such coverage is now being routinely dropped from property and casualty policies as they come up for renewal, with most policies renewing at year end. If Congress fails to act, as of January 1, the vast majority of property owners in this country either will not be insured against terrorism or they will be paying steep premiums for dramatically curtailed coverage. This dynamic can in turn be expected to cause severe locations throughout our economy, particularly in the real estate, transportation, and energy sectors.

1. The Problem

The terrorist attacks of September 11 created widespread uncertainty about the risk and potential costs of future terrorist acts. Since September 11, we have endured this uncertainty every day as a country. It has permeated every sector of our economy.

A key part of the government's response to the events of September 11 is to ensure that our economic stability is not undermined by terrorist acts. Continued economic activity is dependent on well functioning financial markets -- where the lifeblood of capital is provided to business enterprises. Financial markets allocate capital based on the potential success of a business. In doing so, financial markets rely on the insurance sector to mitigate certain types of risk that are not directly related to the plans or operations of a business.

Insurance companies manage risk in economic activity and facilitate the efficient deployment of capital in our economy by estimating probabilities of possible adverse outcomes, and pooling risk across a large group. Since September 11 the uncertainty surrounding terrorism risk has disrupted the ability of insurance companies to estimate, price, and insure the risk.

We learned on September 11 that, while perhaps highly improbable, terrorists are capable of enormous destruction. Could such an event be repeated? As a country and a government, we are doing everything in our power to prevent a repetition of anything like the events of September 11. But how does an insurance company assess this uncertainty? How does an insurance company price for it? At the moment, there are no models, no meaningful experience, no reasonable upper bound on what an individual company's risk exposure may be.

Insurance companies do not "take" risks. They knowingly accept and mutualize risks. They are private, for-profit enterprises. If they do not believe they can make money by underwriting a particular risk, they will not cover it. Because insurance companies do not know the upper bound of terrorism risk exposure, they will protect themselves by charging enormous premiums, dramatically curtailing coverage, or – as we have already seen with terrorism risk exclusions – simply refusing to offer the coverage. Whatever avenue they choose, the result is the same: increased premiums and/or increased risk exposure for property owners that will be passed on to consumers in the form higher product prices, transportation costs, energy costs and reduced production.

The consequences of uncertainties surrounding terrorism risk are already evident in the airline sector. The Department of Transportation's initial projection is that, as a result of the September 11 attacks, airlines will pay nearly $1 billion in premium increases in the next year for dramatically reduced coverage, including a $50 million limit on third party liability coverage being provided by private insurers. Within the next few months, similar increases can be expected for other forms of economic activity deemed "high risk" – if coverage is available at all. Higher premiums will divert capital away from other forms of business investment, and likely cause increases in the costs of capital or reductions in the availability of capital.

The need for action is urgent. From our conversations with insurance company representatives, state insurance regulators, and others, it appears that the next two months are critical. The insurance industry relies on a complicated structure of risk sharing. Risk is shared among primary insurers, reinsurers, and retrocessionairs (i.e., providing reinsurance to the reinsurers). This structure has worked well in the past and greatly contributed to widely spreading losses associated with the events of September 11 across the insurance industry.

However, in light of the uncertainty created by September 11, reinsurers have told us that they will no longer cover acts of terrorism in their reinsurance contracts with primary insurers. And many property and casualty insurance contracts are up for renewal in the next two months. This will create the following choices for insurers: assume all of the risk of terrorism coverage and raise prices to cover all of the associated, unshared costs; reduce coverage levels; or cancel coverage. Any of these choices has the potential to significantly impact economic activity in the near-term either through higher insurance costs or higher financing costs.

2. Objectives

REV_00203293

In grappling with this problem, we have had three objectives.

First and foremost, we want to dampen the shock to the economy of dramatic cost increases for insurance or curtailed coverage.

Second, we seek to limit federal intrusion into private economic activity as much as possible while still achieving the first objective.

Third, we seek to rely on the existing state regulatory infrastructure as much as practicable.

Note that none of these objectives is directed at providing government assistance to the insurance industry. The industry is absorbing the financial losses it contracted for as a result of the September 11 attacks, and is fully capable of making good on those losses. The industry is also capable of continuing to provide insurance for non-terrorist hazards. The problem, as I have said, is one of uncertainty about future terrorist risk. At the moment, there is no basis upon which to price terrorism risk and no sense of the upper bound on the risk exposure.

3. Options

Over the past few weeks, a variety of proposals have emerged to deal with the problem I have outlined. Before turning to the approach we have developed, I will briefly discuss a few of the alternatives we considered and some of the shortcomings we identified with each.

A case could be made to treat terrorism risk insurance like war risk insurance. During World War II, the federal government provided property owners with insurance protection against loss from enemy attack. Similarly, the Israeli government provides insurance for terrorism risk. This approach would recognize the terrorist threat as one made against all Americans and would establish the broadest possible risk pool for insuring against this risk. At the same time, such an approach implies a permanent federal intrusion in the market so long as any terrorism risk remains.

A second approach, one suggested in various forms by insurance industry representatives, involves the creation of a reinsurance company to pool terrorism risk. This model follows an approach developed in the United Kingdom in response to IRA terrorist activities. This approach has some appeal, especially in providing a vehicle for pooling the industry's risk while providing an upper bound on industry losses through a government backstop. With more time, or in different circumstances, this approach may have been desirable.

In our judgement, however, it has several significant shortcomings. First, the approach ultimately leads to the federal government setting premium rates by establishing the rate charged to the pool for the government's backstop. If the basic problem is that the insurance industry -- whose business it is to measure and price risk -- cannot currently price terrorism risk without distorting markets, why would we think the government can do a better job?

Establishing a pool would also take time, and time is very limited since most policies expire at year-end. It is unclear how long it would take industry to capitalize the pool. In the interim, the government's exposure could be substantial, insofar as it would be liable for 100 percent of losses that exceeded the pool's capitalization. In addition, we question whether the government could move quickly enough on its end to establish the contracts, the pricing structure, and the regulatory structure needed to make the proposal work.

Finally, the pool approach creates a federal insurance regulatory apparatus with some presumption of permanence, and a potentially enormous pool of captive capital that we may never need to use. We believe that there will be less uncertainty about terrorism risk a few years from now and that uncertainty will be more manageable by the private sector than is the case today. Given that, why undertake the effort to create a monopoly reinsurer and give a new federal regulator the power to both set prices and regulate insurance companies and their activities?

A third option would be to simply set a large industry deductible and let the federal government cover all losses from acts of terrorism past that point. For instance, the federal government could require the insurance industry to cover all losses up to, say, $40 billion in a given year and the federal government would pay all losses above that amount.

This approach has two substantial drawbacks. First, it does not address the fundamental problem: the industry has no basis for knowing -- and hence pricing -- terrorism risk. A large deductible would require them to assess premiums large enough to cover a large potential loss. In the absence of better information, we might well expect companies to price insurance as if they fully expected losses up to the deductible amount. Second, this approach makes it difficult to control losses above the deductible as insurance companies would have no incentive to limit costs once their deductible has been paid.

4. A Shared Loss Compensation Program

After reviewing these and other options, and discussing these issues with congressional and industry leadership and the state insurance regulatory community, we developed an approach that we believe best accomplishes the three objectives I set forth. Let me say at the outset that this approach reflects the current evolution of our thinking on this issue. We want to work with Congress to achieve the best possible solution. Toward that end, it is important not to fall prey to the misperception that we are trying to craft an "insurance industry bailout." As I have said, the insurance industry can easily protect itself by eliminating coverage or charging very high premiums. What we are trying to do is craft a plan that will prevent the economic dislocations that will otherwise take place if private insurers follow the course they are now on. It is imperative that we find a solution that works in the marketplace. We must get it right, and we must get it right now.

When terrorists target symbols of our nation's economic, political and military power, they are attacking the nation as a whole, not the symbol. This argues for spreading the cost across all taxpayers. Yet there are also reasons to limit the federal role. If property owners do not face any liability from potential attacks, they may under-invest in security measures and backup facilities. In addition, the insurance industry has sufficient experience and capacity to price some portion of the risk associated with terrorism and has the infrastructure necessary to assess and process claims.

Under the approach we are suggesting, individuals, businesses, and other entities would continue to obtain property and casualty insurance from insurance providers as they did before September 11. The terms of the terrorism risk coverage would be unchanged and would be the same as that for other risks.

Any loss claims resulting from a future terrorist act would be submitted by the policyholder to the insurance company. The insurance company would process the claims, and then submit an invoice to the government for payment of its share.

The Treasury would establish a general process by which insurance companies submit claims. The Treasury would also institute a process for reviewing and auditing claims and for ensuring that the private/public loss sharing arrangement is apportioned among all insurance companies in a consistent manner. State insurance regulators would also play an important role in monitoring the claims process and ensuring the overall integrity of the insurance system.

Through the end of 2002, the government would absorb 80 percent of the first $20 billion of insured losses resulting from terrorism and 90 percent of insured losses above $20 billion. Thus, the private sector would pay 20 percent of the first $20 billion in losses and 10 percent of losses above that amount.

Under this approach the federal government is absorbing a portion of the first dollar of losses, which we believe is important to do in the first year of the program. The key problem faced by insurance companies right now is pricing for terrorism risk. While this type of loss sharing approach does not completely alleviate that problem, it does provide insurance companies with the ability to evaluate potential losses on a policy by policy basis, with clearly defined maximum exposures. For example, on a $100 million commercial policy the insurance company's maximum exposure would be $20 million. If industry losses were greater than $20 billion that exposure would be reduced even further.

More importantly, price increases to policyholders should be lower under this approach than under an approach that requires companies to absorb 100 percent of losses up to a large, aggregate industry loss deductible. Under this approach, if an insurance company's maximum exposure was defined at $20 million on a $100 million policy, the insurance company could then price that $20 million exposure on the probability of a complete loss event occurring.

Suppose instead that the insurance industry had to absorb $20 billion in losses before any government loss sharing began. Then, in our example, the insurance company's maximum loss exposure would be $100 million on that policy, not $20 million. Pricing to this maximum loss would create the economic dislocation we are trying to avoid.

The role of the federal government would recede over time, with the expectation that the private sector would further develop its capacity each year. As private sector capacity increases, the nature of the government's loss sharing agreement could also change. Given more time and experience, we believe that the insurance industry could reestablish robust risk-sharing arrangements such as reinsurance that would enable the private sector to insure losses from terrorism before the government loss sharing commenced.

Thus, in 2003, we would have the private sector be responsible for 100 percent of the first $10 billion of insured losses, 50 percent of the insured losses between $10 and $20 billion, and 10 percent of the insured losses above $20 billion. The government would be responsible for the remainder.

In 2004, the private sector would be responsible for 100 percent of the first $20 billion of insured losses, 50 percent of the insured losses between $20 and $40 billion, and 10 percent of the insured losses above $40 billion. The government would be responsible for the remainder.

To preserve flexibility in an extraordinary attack, combined private/public liability for losses under the program would be capped at $100 billion in any year. It would be left to Congress to determine payments above $100 billion.

The federal government's involvement would sunset after three years. It is our hope, indeed our expectation, that the market problem we face today will have been corrected by then so that the private sector will be able to effectively price and manage terrorism risk insurance going forward. Of course, should that prove not to be the case, Congress and the President can reevaluate the program in place and decide at that time on an extension of the program or establishment of some other approach.

This approach would also provide certain tort reforms, including consolidation of claims into a single forum and a prohibition on punitive damages. It is important to ensure that any liability arising from terrorist attacks results from culpable behavior rather than overzealous litigation. These reforms are important to mitigating losses arising from any future terrorist attack on our nation, and are an absolutely essential component of the program I have outlined.

Finally, this approach requires a clear definition of an "act of terrorism." We suggest that the Secretary of the Treasury be given authority, in consultation with other members of the Cabinet, to certify that a terrorist act had taken place for purposes of activating the shared loss compensation arrangement.

We believe that this approach dampens any adverse economic impact from a sudden increase in the cost from terrorism risk insurance over the next 12 months. The imposition of a deductible in the second year, and an increase in the deductible in the third year, permits the federal government to gradually withdraw from the market as the private sector adapts to measuring and pricing terrorism risk.

5. Conclusion

Mr. Chairman, for the reasons I have set forth, the Administration believes that the economy is facing a temporary, but critical, market problem in the provision of terrorism risk insurance. Keeping our economy moving must be our overriding concern. Leaving this problem unresolved threatens our economic stability. The approach I have outlined limits the government's direct involvement, retains all those elements of our private insurance system that continue to operate well, and provides a transition period to allow the private sector to establish market mechanisms to deal with this insidious new risk that confronts ours nation.

There are no perfect solutions to this problem. We have developed what we believe is a sound approach. As I explained earlier, we do not believe that creation of a reinsurance pool can be accomplished under the time constraints we face, but we would be glad to explore modifications to our approach with the Committee.

I would be pleased to answer any questions the Subcommittee may have.

FYI, here's a copy of my earlier email (which apparently went only to Roger) re user fees:

_____Forward Header_____
Subject: No user fees
Author: David Leitch
Date: 10/4/01 5:12 PM

Just to close the loop on our last conversation regarding our inability to impose user fees, our last appropriations act provided: "That none of the funds in this Act shall available for the Federal Aviation Administration to plan, finalize, or implement any regulation that would promulgate new aviation user fees not specifically authorized by law after the date of the enactment of this Act." I suppose this wouldn't necessarily rule out having DOT or POTUS impose some kind of user fee, but it would rule out having me work on it!

Fact Sheet: Friendship Through Education

TODAY,S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

? President Bush joined leaders of non-governmental and private organizations at Marshall Elementary School in the District of Columbia to announce the formation of &Friendship Through Education8) a consortium of groups facilitating expanded links between US students and students in countries with Muslim populations.

? As the first stage in this initiative, three schools in the US communities most directly affected by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be linked for student and teacher interchanges with schools in Islamic nations.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION

? Friendship Through Education is a consortium of non-governmental organizations and private groups committed to connecting children from different nations in an effort to bridge cultures and broaden understanding. One of the best ways to deter terrorism is through education and understanding. This interaction will be build friendships and involve students in discussions of issues facing them as future global citizens.

? Friendship Through Education will facilitate expanded student and teacher exchanges among countries throughout the globe. It will launch this effort with a commitment to expand links between US schools and those in Islamic countries, including Egypt, Indonesia, Qatar, Pakistan, Turkey, Bahrain and Afghan refugee camps. The Friendship through Education consortium will identify appropriate friendship schools in Islamic nations, help provide safe and secure Internet-based communications among students, assist with translations and facilitate classroom projects.

? The consortium includes: iEARN-USA, People to People International, The UN's Cyberschoolbus, ePals Classroom Exchange, Global SchoolNet Foundation, Schools Online, Sister Cities International, US Fund for UNICEF, and Paul D. Coverdell World Wise Schools Program of the Peace Corps. Additional organizations will be able to join the consortium, thereby expanding the number and types of projects available for schools. iEARN will be the organization responsible for coordinating the consortium members.

? The consortium is modeled after several successful existing programs, including the &President,s People to People program.8 This initiative was launched on September 11, 1956, by then President Dwight D. Eisenhower. After touring the liberated death camps after World War II, Eisenhower was sure that, if people could have face-to-face contact, future atrocities could be avoided through better understanding. President Eisenhower,s granddaughter, Mary Eisenhower, is Executive Director of People to People, one of the groups involved in the Friendship Through Education consortium.

HOW FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION WORKS

? Schools from the US communities most directly impacted by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be the first to participate in this program.

? Thurgood Marshall Extended Elementary School (K-8), Washington, DC
? Patrick Henry Elementary School, Arlington, VA
? Mott Hall School, New York City

? These schools have been chosen to work with the Friendship Through Education network to reach out, respectively, to:

? Al-Raja Elementary School (Manama, Bahrain)
? Dawood Public School (Karachi, Pakistan)
? Abbass El Akkad Experimental Language School (Cairo, Egypt)

? The goal of Friendship Through Education is to link an American school in every state with a school in countries with Muslim populations in the Middle, Near and Far East.

? Initially, the Friendship Through Education consortium will encourage two types of projects:

? E-Mail PenPals: Allows students to exchange e-mails with students from one of the identified countries in an effort to better understand each other,s countries and cultures.
? Laws of Life Project: Invites young people to submit essays describing the rules, ideals and principles by which they live and explain the sources of their laws of life (literature, life experience, religion, culture, role models).

? These opportunities will be promoted by a new &Friendship Through Education8 website. Schools interested in participating in these projects can visit the website where registration can take place through the members of the consortium and schools can indicate their interest in connecting with another class. Additionally, schools will be able to access all programs offered by members of the consortium. The web address is: http://www.FriendshipThroughEducation.org

TODAY
'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

? President Bush joined leaders of non-governmental and private organizations
at Marshall Elementary School in the District of Columbia to announce the formation of "Friendship Through Education" ? a consortium of groups facilitating expanded links between US students and students in countries with Muslim populations.

? As the first stage in this initiative, three schools in the US communities
most directly affected by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be linked for student and teacher interchanges with schools in Islamic nations.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION

? Friendship Through Education is a consortium of non-governmental organizations and private groups committed to connecting children from different nations in an effort to bridge cultures and broaden understanding. One of the best ways to deter terrorism is through education and understanding. This interaction will be build friendships and involve students in discussions
of
issues facing them as future global citizens.

? Friendship Through Education will facilitate expanded student and teacher exchanges among countries throughout the globe. It will launch this effort with a commitment to expand links between US schools and those in Islamic countries, including Egypt, Indonesia, Qatar, Pakistan, Turkey, Bahrain and Afghan refugee camps. The Friendship through Education consortium will identify appropriate friendship schools in Islamic nations, help provide safe and secure Internet-based communications among students, assist with translations and facilitate classroom projects.

? The consortium includes: iEARN-USA, People to People International, The UN's Cyberschoolbus, ePals Classroom Exchange, Global SchoolNet Foundation, Schools Online, Sister Cities International, US Fund for UNICEF, and Paul D. Coverdell World Wise Schools Program of the Peace Corps. Additional organizations will be able to join the consortium, thereby expanding the number and types of projects available for schools. iEARN will be the organization responsible for coordinating the consortium members.

? The consortium is modeled after several successful existing programs, including the "President's People to People program." This initiative was launched on September 11, 1956, by then President Dwight D. Eisenhower. After touring the liberated death camps after World War II, Eisenhower was sure that, if people could have face-to-face contact, future atrocities could be avoided through better understanding. President Eisenhower's granddaughter, Mary Eisenhower, is Executive Director of People to People, one of the groups involved in the Friendship Through Education consortium.

HOW FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION WORKS

? Schools from the US communities most directly impacted by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be the first to participate in this program.

? Patrick Henry Elementary School, Arlington, VA
? Mott Hall School, New York City

? These schools have been chosen to work with the Friendship Through Education network to reach out, respectively, to:

? Al-Raja Elementary School (Manama, Bahrain)
? Abbass El Akkad Experimental Language School (Cairo, Egypt)

? The goal of Friendship Through Education is to link an American school in every state with a school in countries with Muslim populations in the Middle, Near and Far East.

? Initially, the Friendship Through Education consortium will encourage two types of projects:

? E-Mail PenPals: Allows students to exchange e-mails with students from one of the identified countries in an effort to better understand each other's countries and cultures.

? Laws of Life Project: Invites young people to submit essays describing the rules, ideals and principles by which they live and explain the sources of their laws of life (literature, life experience, religion, culture, role models).

? These opportunities will be promoted by a new "Friendship Through Education" website. Schools interested in participating in these projects can visit the website where registration can take place through the members of
the consortium and schools can indicate their interest in connecting with another class. Additionally, schools will be able to access all programs offered by

TODAY
'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

? President Bush joined leaders of non-governmental and private organizations
at Marshall Elementary School in the District of Columbia to announce the formation of "Friendship Through Education" ? a consortium of groups facilitating expanded links between US students and students in countries
with
Muslim populations.

? As the first stage in this initiative, three schools in the US
communities
most directly affected by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be linked for student and teacher interchanges with schools in Islamic nations.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION

? Friendship Through Education is a consortium of non-governmental organizations and private groups committed to connecting children from different nations in an effort to bridge cultures and broaden understanding. One of
the best ways to deter terrorism is through education and understanding. This interaction will be build friendships and involve students in discussions
of
issues facing them as future global citizens.

? Friendship Through Education will facilitate expanded student and teacher
exchanges among countries throughout the globe. It will launch this effort with a commitment to expand links between US schools and those in Islamic countries, including Egypt, Indonesia, Qatar, Pakistan, Turkey, Bahrain and Afghan refugee camps. The Friendship through Education consortium will identify appropriate
friendship schools in Islamic nations, help provide safe and secure Internet-based communications among students, assist with translations and facilitate classroom projects.

? The consortium includes: iEARN-USA, People to People International, The UN's Cyberschoolbus, ePals Classroom Exchange, Global SchoolNet Foundation,
Schools Online, Sister Cities International, US Fund for UNICEF, and Paul D.
Coverdell World Wise Schools Program of the Peace Corps. Additional organizations will be able to join the consortium, thereby expanding the number and types of projects available for schools. iEARN will be the organization responsible for coordinating the consortium members.

? The consortium is modeled after several successful existing programs, including the "President's People to People program." This initiative was launched on September 11, 1956, by then President Dwight D. Eisenhower. After touring the liberated death camps after World War II, Eisenhower was sure that, if people could have face-to-face contact, future atrocities could be avoided through better understanding. President Eisenhower's granddaughter, Mary Eisenhower, is Executive Director of People to People, one of the groups involved in the Friendship Through Education consortium.

HOW FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION WORKS

? Schools from the US communities most directly impacted by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be the first to participate in this program.

? Patrick Henry Elementary School, Arlington, VA
? Mott Hall School, New York City

? These schools have been chosen to work with the Friendship Through Education network to reach out, respectively, to:

? Al-Raja Elementary School (Manama, Bahrain)
? Dawood Public School (Karachi, Pakistan)
? Abbass El Akkad Experimental Language School (Cairo, Egypt)

? The goal of Friendship Through Education is to link an American school in every state with a school in countries with Muslim populations in the Middle, Near and Far East.

? Initially, the Friendship Through Education consortium will encourage two types of projects:

? E-Mail PenPals: Allows students to exchange e-mails with students from one of the identified countries in an effort to better understand each other's countries and cultures.
? Laws of Life Project: Invites young people to submit essays describing the rules, ideals and principles by which they live and explain the sources of their laws of life (literature, life experience, religion, culture, role models).

? These opportunities will be promoted by a new "Friendship Through Education" website. Schools interested in participating in these projects can visit the website where registration can take place through the members of the consortium and schools can indicate their interest in connecting with another class. Additionally, schools will be able to access all programs offered by members of the consortium. The web address is:

TODAY
'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

? President Bush joined leaders of non-governmental and private organizations
at Marshall Elementary School in the District of Columbia to announce the formation of "Friendship Through Education" ? a consortium of groups facilitating expanded links between US students and students in countries
with
Muslim populations.

? As the first stage in this initiative, three schools in the US
communities
most directly affected by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be linked for student and teacher interchanges with schools in Islamic nations.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION

? Friendship Through Education is a consortium of non-governmental organizations and private groups committed to connecting children from different nations in an effort to bridge cultures and broaden understanding. One of
the best ways to deter terrorism is through education and understanding. This interaction will be build friendships and involve students in discussions
of
issues facing them as future global citizens.

? Friendship Through Education will facilitate expanded student and teacher
exchanges among countries throughout the globe. It will launch this effort with a commitment to expand links between US schools and those in Islamic countries,
including Egypt, Indonesia, Qatar, Pakistan, Turkey, Bahrain and Afghan refugee
appropriate
friendship schools in Islamic nations, help provide safe and secure Internet-based communications among students, assist with translations and facilitate classroom projects.

Schools Online, Sister Cities International, US Fund for UNICEF, and Paul D.
Coverdell World Wise Schools Program of the Peace Corps. Additional organizations will be able to join the consortium, thereby expanding the number
and types of projects available for schools. iEARN will be the organization
responsible for coordinating the consortium members.

? The consortium is modeled after several successful existing programs, including the "President's People to People program." This initiative was launched on September 11, 1956, by then President Dwight D. Eisenhower. After touring the liberated death camps after World War II, Eisenhower was sure that, if people could have face-to-face contact, future atrocities could be avoided
through better understanding. President Eisenhower's granddaughter, Mary Eisenhower, is Executive Director of People to People, one of the groups

HOW FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION WORKS

? Schools from the US communities most directly impacted by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be the first to participate in this program.

? Patrick Henry Elementary School, Arlington, VA
? Mott Hall School, New York City

? These schools have been chosen to work with the Friendship Through Education network to reach out, respectively, to:

? Al-Raja Elementary School (Manama, Bahrain)
? Abbass El Akkad Experimental Language School (Cairo, Egypt)

? The goal of Friendship Through Education is to link an American school in every state with a school in countries with Muslim populations in the Middle, Near and Far East.

? Initially, the Friendship Through Education consortium will encourage two types of projects:

? E-Mail PenPals: Allows students to exchange e-mails with students from one of the identified countries in an effort to better understand each other's countries and cultures.
? Laws of Life Project: Invites young people to submit essays describing the rules, ideals and principles by which they live and explain the sources of their laws of life (literature, life experience, religion, culture, role models).

? These opportunities will be promoted by a new "Friendship Through
visit the website where registration can take place through the members of the consortium and schools can indicate their interest in connecting with another class. Additionally, schools will be able to access all programs offered by members of the consortium. The web address is:

The attached talking points (1) relate to the aviation security legislation the President supports, and (2) make the case why it is important that the government have maximum hiring flexibility to ensure that we have the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening services available at airport security check points.

IMPROVING AVIATION SAFETY & SECURITY

The President urges swift bipartisan action on his comprehensive package to put in place tough new security measures to make our airports and our airplanes safer:

- ☑ Federalize airport security
- ☑ Significantly expand the Federal Air Marshal program
- ☑ Fortify cockpit doors to protect pilots and crews
- ☑ Put the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening on the front lines

H.R. 3150 – THE SECURE TRANSPORTATION FOR AMERICA ACT

- Expands the Federal Air Marshal program.
- Authorizes $500 million for cockpit/aircraft security.
- Creates a new Transportation Security Agency (TSA) housed at the Department of Transportation within three months and directs the new Agency to take over airline security screening.
- Gives the TSA the ability to contract with high quality private security companies to perform the screening function where it is safer and more effective.
- Ensures that the federal employees of the TSA supervise, manage, set standards, train and perform background checks for everyone involved in passenger and baggage screening.
- Requires a Federal law enforcement officer to be stationed at every screening location.
- Directs the TSA to improve the security of all airport areas with access to airplanes.

PUTTING THE TOUGHEST POSSIBLE BAGGAGE SCREENING ON THE FRONT LINES

- In the wake of September 11 we need to drastically improve the way passenger baggage is screened at airports. We need the toughest possible baggage screening at airport security check points.

- The federal control model proposed by the President mirrors the well regarded airline security systems in Europe, which are public/private partnerships with strong government oversight. In fact, in many of these systems, the national government chose to replace public security personnel with private contractors to improve security at their airports.

- H.R. 3150 puts control of aviation security with the agency that has the experience to get the job done – the Department of Transportation. DOT has a broad statutory mandate and nearly 35 years of operational experience. DOT also already has much of the necessary infrastructure in place to facilitate a smooth transition by providing transportation security inspections, enforcement and oversight while the new TSA gets up and running.

- H.R. 3150 gives the federal government a choice. It can choose to only hire federal workers or it can choose – on an airport-by-airport basis – to work with private contractors who demonstrate they can meet the tougher, and safer screening services mandated by the federal government. Under H.R. 3150:

  - ✓ The federal government will be responsible for baggage screening.
  - ✓ The federal government will oversee training of baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will conduct the background checks on baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will set rigorous standards and qualifications for baggage screeners.

- The President's plan to put the toughest possible baggage screeners at security check points is more effective than other plans because it is:

  - ✓ Quicker and more efficient. We need tough new baggage screeners on the job as quickly as possible. Allowing only federal workers to screen bags will require more than 20,000 new federal employees. Common sense dictates that creating a new workforce of more than 20,000 new federal workers will be a costly and lengthy process – precious time will be wasted that could be better spent screening bags. The 20,000 workers will also need to be assembled and trained from scratch, delaying the new security system for an undetermined period of time. It simply makes sense to allow some use of private companies that already have trained workers in place and to let the federal government concentrate on getting new security measures in place as quickly as possible.

  - ✓ Puts more resources at the screening gate – not in Washington bureaucracy. Not giving airports a choice in hiring will keep more money in Washington for administrative costs and other expenses – every dollar that stays in Washington for administrative costs is a dollar that is not protecting Americans at the baggage screening gate. Mandatory full federalization would immediately put more than 20,000 new employees on the federal payroll and require administration of the entire array of support services needed for such a large complement of federal workers. Using private workers with established administrative infrastructures will put more dollars at the gate.

  - ✓ Produces tougher, more qualified baggage screeners. If the government doesn't have a choice in hiring screeners, there will be no competition and less incentive to produce tougher, more qualified screeners. Expanding options for airports will put the toughest screeners possible at the screening check points.

  - ✓ Ensures flexibility to discipline or remove unqualified screeners. Permitting the use of contract employees will preserve the most flexibility and control for the federal security agency. The government needs the authority to replace unqualified individual screeners – or even an entire airport screening workforce that is not meeting the rigorous new security standards.

The attached talking points (1) relate to the aviation security legislation the President supports, and (2) make the case why it is important that the government have maximum hiring flexibility to ensure that we have the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening services available at airport security
check points.

IMPROVING AVIATION SAFETY & SECURITY

The President urges swift bipartisan action on his comprehensive package to put in place tough new security measures to make our airports and our airplanes safer:

- ☑ Federalize airport security
- ☑ Significantly expand the Federal Air Marshal program
- ☑ Fortify cockpit doors to protect pilots and crews
- ☑ Put the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening on the front lines

- Expands the Federal Air Marshal program.
- Authorizes $500 million for cockpit/aircraft security.
- Creates a new Transportation Security Agency (TSA) housed at the Department of Transportation within three months and directs the new Agency to take over airline security screening.
- Gives the TSA the ability to contract with high quality private security companies to perform the screening function where it is safer and more effective.
- Ensures that the federal employees of the TSA supervise, manage, set standards, train and perform background checks for everyone involved in passenger and baggage screening.
- Requires a Federal law enforcement officer to be stationed at every screening location.
- Directs the TSA to improve the security of all airport areas with access to airplanes.

PUTTING THE TOUGHEST POSSIBLE BAGGAGE SCREENING ON THE FRONT LINES

- In the wake of September 11 we need to drastically improve the way passenger baggage is screened at airports. We need the toughest possible baggage screening at airport security check points.

- The federal control model proposed by the President mirrors the well regarded airline security systems in Europe, which are public/private partnerships with strong government oversight. In fact, in many of these systems, the national government chose to replace public security personnel with private contractors to improve security at their airports.

- H.R. 3150 puts control of aviation security with the agency that has the experience to get the job done – the Department of Transportation. DOT has a broad statutory mandate and nearly 35 years of operational experience. DOT also already has much of the necessary infrastructure in place to facilitate a smooth transition by providing transportation security inspections, enforcement and oversight while the new TSA gets up and running.

- H.R. 3150 gives the federal government a choice. It can choose to only hire federal workers or it can choose – on an airport-by-airport basis – to work with private contractors who demonstrate they can meet the tougher, and safer screening services mandated by the federal government. Under H.R. 3150:

  - ✓ The federal government will be responsible for baggage screening.
  - ✓ The federal government will oversee training of baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will conduct the background checks on baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will set rigorous standards and qualifications for baggage screeners.

- The President's plan to put the toughest possible baggage screeners at security check points is more effective than other plans because it is:

  - ✓ Quicker and more efficient. We need tough new baggage screeners on the job as quickly as possible. Allowing only federal workers to screen bags will require more than 20,000 new federal employees. Common sense dictates that creating a new workforce of more than 20,000 new federal workers will be a costly and lengthy process – precious time will be wasted that could be better spent screening bags. The 20,000 workers will also need to be assembled and trained from scratch, delaying the new security system for an undetermined period of time. It simply makes sense to allow some use of private companies that already have trained workers in place and to let the federal government concentrate on getting new security measures in place as quickly as possible.

  - ✓ Puts more resources at the screening gate – not in Washington bureaucracy. Not giving airports a choice in hiring will keep more money in Washington for administrative costs and other expenses – every dollar that stays in Washington for administrative costs is a dollar that is not protecting Americans at the baggage screening gate. Mandatory full federalization would immediately put more than 20,000 new employees on the federal payroll and require administration of the entire array of support services needed for such a large complement of federal workers. Using private workers with established administrative infrastructures will put more dollars at the gate.

  - ✓ Produces tougher, more qualified baggage screeners. If the government doesn't have a choice in hiring screeners, there will be no competition and less incentive to produce tougher, more qualified screeners. Expanding options for airports will put the toughest screeners possible at the screening check points.

  - ✓ Ensures flexibility to discipline or remove unqualified screeners. Permitting the use of contract employees will preserve the most flexibility and control for the federal security agency. The government needs the authority to replace unqualified individual screeners – or even an entire airport screening workforce that is not meeting the rigorous new security standards.

Fact Sheet: Friendship Through Education

TODAY,S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

? President Bush joined leaders of non-governmental and private organizations at Marshall Elementary School in the District of Columbia to announce the formation of &Friendship Through Education8) a consortium of groups facilitating expanded links between US students and students in countries with Muslim populations.

? As the first stage in this initiative, three schools in the US communities most directly affected by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be linked for student and teacher interchanges with schools in Islamic nations.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION

? Friendship Through Education is a consortium of non-governmental organizations and private groups committed to connecting children from different nations in an effort to bridge cultures and broaden understanding. One of the best ways to deter terrorism is through education and understanding. This interaction will be build friendships and involve students in discussions of issues facing them as future global citizens.

? Friendship Through Education will facilitate expanded student and teacher exchanges among countries throughout the globe. It will launch this effort with a commitment to expand links between US schools and those in Islamic countries, including Egypt, Indonesia, Qatar, Pakistan, Turkey, Bahrain and Afghan refugee camps. The Friendship through Education consortium will identify appropriate friendship schools in Islamic nations, help provide safe and secure Internet-based communications among students, assist with translations and facilitate classroom projects.

? The consortium includes: iEARN-USA, People to People International, The UN's Cyberschoolbus, ePals Classroom Exchange, Global SchoolNet Foundation, Schools Online, Sister Cities International, US Fund for UNICEF, and Paul D. Coverdell World Wise Schools Program of the Peace Corps. Additional organizations will be able to join the consortium, thereby expanding the number and types of projects available for schools. iEARN will be the organization responsible for coordinating the consortium members.

? The consortium is modeled after several successful existing programs, including the &President,s People to People program.8 This initiative was launched on September 11, 1956, by then President Dwight D. Eisenhower. After touring the liberated death camps after World War II, Eisenhower was sure that, if people could have face-to-face contact, future atrocities could be avoided through better understanding. President Eisenhower,s granddaughter, Mary Eisenhower, is Executive Director of People to People, one of the groups involved in the Friendship Through Education consortium.

HOW FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION WORKS

? Schools from the US communities most directly impacted by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be the first to participate in this program.

? Patrick Henry Elementary School, Arlington, VA
? Mott Hall School, New York City

? These schools have been chosen to work with the Friendship Through Education network to reach out, respectively, to:

? Al-Raja Elementary School (Manama, Bahrain)
? Abbass El Akkad Experimental Language School (Cairo, Egypt)

? The goal of Friendship Through Education is to link an American school in every state with a school in countries with Muslim populations in the Middle, Near and Far East.

? Initially, the Friendship Through Education consortium will encourage two types of projects:

? E-Mail PenPals: Allows students to exchange e-mails with students from one of the identified countries in an effort to better understand each other,s countries and cultures.
? Laws of Life Project: Invites young people to submit essays describing the rules, ideals and principles by which they live and explain the sources of their laws of life (literature, life experience, religion, culture, role models).

? These opportunities will be promoted by a new &Friendship Through Education8 website. Schools interested in participating in these projects can visit the website where registration can take place through the members of the consortium and schools can indicate their interest in connecting with another class. Additionally, schools will be able to access all programs offered by members of the consortium. The web address is: http://www.FriendshipThroughEducation.org

TODAY
'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

? President Bush joined leaders of non-governmental and private organizations
at Marshall Elementary School in the District of Columbia to announce the formation of "Friendship Through Education" ? a consortium of groups facilitating expanded links between US students and students in countries
with
Muslim populations.

? As the first stage in this initiative, three schools in the US
communities
most directly affected by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be linked for student and teacher interchanges with schools in Islamic nations.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION

? Friendship Through Education is a consortium of non-governmental organizations and private groups committed to connecting children from different nations in an effort to bridge cultures and broaden understanding. One of
the best ways to deter terrorism is through education and understanding. This interaction will be build friendships and involve students in discussions
of
issues facing them as future global citizens.

? Friendship Through Education will facilitate expanded student and teacher exchanges among countries throughout the globe. It will launch this effort with a commitment to expand links between US schools and those in Islamic countries, including Egypt, Indonesia, Qatar, Pakistan, Turkey, Bahrain and Afghan refugee camps. The Friendship through Education consortium will identify appropriate friendship schools in Islamic nations, help provide safe and secure Internet-based communications among students, assist with translations and facilitate classroom projects.

? The consortium includes: iEARN-USA, People to People International, The UN's Cyberschoolbus, ePals Classroom Exchange, Global SchoolNet Foundation, Schools Online, Sister Cities International, US Fund for UNICEF, and Paul D. Coverdell World Wise Schools Program of the Peace Corps. Additional organizations will be able to join the consortium, thereby expanding the number and types of projects available for schools. iEARN will be the organization responsible for coordinating the consortium members.

? The consortium is modeled after several successful existing programs, including the "President's People to People program." This initiative was launched on September 11, 1956, by then President Dwight D. Eisenhower. After touring the liberated death camps after World War II, Eisenhower was sure that, if people could have face-to-face contact, future atrocities could be avoided through better understanding. President Eisenhower's granddaughter, Mary Eisenhower, is Executive Director of People to People, one of the groups involved in the Friendship Through Education consortium.

HOW FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION WORKS

? Schools from the US communities most directly impacted by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be the first to participate in this program.

? Patrick Henry Elementary School, Arlington, VA
? Mott Hall School, New York City

? These schools have been chosen to work with the Friendship Through Education network to reach out, respectively, to:

? Al-Raja Elementary School (Manama, Bahrain)
? Abbass El Akkad Experimental Language School (Cairo, Egypt)

? The goal of Friendship Through Education is to link an American school in every state with a school in countries with Muslim populations in the Middle, Near and Far East.

? Initially, the Friendship Through Education consortium will encourage two types of projects:

? E-Mail PenPals: Allows students to exchange e-mails with students from one of the identified countries in an effort to better understand each other's countries and cultures.

? Laws of Life Project: Invites young people to submit essays describing the rules, ideals and principles by which they live and explain the sources of their laws of life (literature, life experience, religion, culture, role models).

? These opportunities will be promoted by a new "Friendship Through Education" website. Schools interested in participating in these projects can visit the website where registration can take place through the members of
the consortium and schools can indicate their interest in connecting with another class. Additionally, schools will be able to access all programs offered by

TODAY
'S PRESIDENTIAL ACTION

? President Bush joined leaders of non-governmental and private organizations
at Marshall Elementary School in the District of Columbia to announce the formation of "Friendship Through Education" ? a consortium of groups facilitating expanded links between US students and students in countries
with
Muslim populations.

? As the first stage in this initiative, three schools in the US
communities
most directly affected by the September 11 terrorist attacks will be linked for student and teacher interchanges with schools in Islamic nations.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION

? Friendship Through Education is a consortium of non-governmental organizations and private groups committed to connecting children from different nations in an effort to bridge cultures and broaden understanding. One of
the best ways to deter terrorism is through education and understanding. This interaction will be build friendships and involve students in discussions
of issues facing them as future global citizens.

? Friendship Through Education will facilitate expanded student and teacher
exchanges among countries throughout the globe. It will launch this effort with a commitment to expand links between US schools and those in Islamic countries,
including Egypt, Indonesia, Qatar, Pakistan, Turkey, Bahrain and Afghan refugee

appropriate
friendship schools in Islamic nations, help provide safe and secure Internet-based communications among students, assist with translations and facilitate classroom projects.

? The consortium includes: iEARN-USA, People to People International,
The
Schools Online, Sister Cities International, US Fund for UNICEF, and Paul D.
Coverdell World Wise Schools Program of the Peace Corps. Additional organizations will be able to join the consortium, thereby expanding the number
and types of projects available for schools. iEARN will be the organization responsible for coordinating the consortium members.

? The consortium is modeled after several successful existing programs, including the "President's People to People program." This initiative was launched on September 11, 1956, by then President Dwight D. Eisenhower.
After touring the liberated death camps after World War II, Eisenhower was sure that, if people could have face-to-face contact, future atrocities could be avoided
through better understanding. President Eisenhower's granddaughter, Mary Eisenhower, is Executive Director of People to People, one of the groups
involved in the Friendship Through Education consortium.

HOW FRIENDSHIP THROUGH EDUCATION WORKS

? Schools from the US communities most directly impacted by the September 11
terrorist attacks will be the first to participate in this program.

? Patrick Henry Elementary School, Arlington, VA
? Mott Hall School, New York City

? These schools have been chosen to work with the Friendship Through Education network to reach out, respectively, to:

? Al-Raja Elementary School (Manama, Bahrain)
? Dawood Public School (Karachi, Pakistan)
? Abbass El Akkad Experimental Language School (Cairo, Egypt)

? The goal of Friendship Through Education is to link an American school in every state with a school in countries with Muslim populations in the Middle,
Near and Far East.

? Initially, the Friendship Through Education consortium will encourage two types of projects:

? E-Mail PenPals: Allows students to exchange e-mails with students from one of the identified countries in an effort to better understand each other's

countries and cultures.
? Laws of Life Project: Invites young people to submit essays describing the rules, ideals and principles by which they live and explain the sources of their laws of life (literature, life experience, religion, culture, role models).

? These opportunities will be promoted by a new "Friendship Through Education" website. Schools interested in participating in these projects can visit the website where registration can take place through the members of the consortium and schools can indicate their interest in connecting with another class. Additionally, schools will be able to access all programs offered by members of the consortium. The web address is: http://www.FriendshipThroughEducation.org

The attached talking points (1) relate to the aviation security legislation the President supports, and (2) make the case why it is important that the government have maximum hiring flexibility to ensure that we have the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening services available at airport security check points.

IMPROVING AVIATION SAFETY & SECURITY

The President urges swift bipartisan action on his comprehensive package to put in place tough new security measures to make our airports and our airplanes safer:

- ☑ Federalize airport security
- ☑ Significantly expand the Federal Air Marshal program
- ☑ Fortify cockpit doors to protect pilots and crews
- ☑ Put the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening on the front lines

- Expands the Federal Air Marshal program.
- Authorizes $500 million for cockpit/aircraft security.
- Creates a new Transportation Security Agency (TSA) housed at the Department of Transportation within three months and directs the new Agency to take over airline security screening.
- Gives the TSA the ability to contract with high quality private security companies to perform the screening function where it is safer and more effective.
- Ensures that the federal employees of the TSA supervise, manage, set standards, train and perform background checks for everyone involved in passenger and baggage screening.
- Requires a Federal law enforcement officer to be stationed at every screening location.
- Directs the TSA to improve the security of all airport areas with access to airplanes.

PUTTING THE TOUGHEST POSSIBLE BAGGAGE SCREENING ON THE FRONT LINES

- In the wake of September 11 we need to drastically improve the way passenger baggage is screened at airports. We need the toughest possible baggage screening at airport security check points.

- The federal control model proposed by the President mirrors the well regarded airline security systems in Europe, which are public/private partnerships with strong government oversight. In fact, in many of these systems, the national government chose to replace public security personnel with private contractors to improve security at their airports.

- H.R. 3150 puts control of aviation security with the agency that has the experience to get the job done – the Department of Transportation. DOT has a broad statutory mandate and nearly 35 years of operational experience. DOT also already has much of the necessary infrastructure in place to facilitate a smooth transition by providing transportation security inspections, enforcement and oversight while the new TSA gets up and running.

- H.R. 3150 gives the federal government a choice. It can choose to only hire federal workers or it can choose – on an airport-by-airport basis – to work with private contractors who demonstrate they can meet the tougher, and safer screening services mandated by the federal government. Under H.R. 3150:

  - ✓ The federal government will be responsible for baggage screening.
  - ✓ The federal government will oversee training of baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will conduct the background checks on baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will set rigorous standards and qualifications for baggage screeners.

- The President's plan to put the toughest possible baggage screeners at security check points is more effective than other plans because it is:

  - ✓ Quicker and more efficient. We need tough new baggage screeners on the job as quickly as possible. Allowing only federal workers to screen bags will require more than 20,000 new federal employees. Common sense dictates that creating a new workforce of more than 20,000 new federal workers will be a costly and lengthy process – precious time will be wasted that could be better spent screening bags. The 20,000 workers will also need to be assembled and trained from scratch, delaying the new security system for an undetermined period of time. It simply makes sense to allow some use of private companies that already have trained workers in place and to let the federal government concentrate on getting new security measures in place as quickly as possible.

  - ✓ Puts more resources at the screening gate – not in Washington bureaucracy. Not giving airports a choice in hiring will keep more money in Washington for administrative costs and other expenses – every dollar that stays in Washington for administrative costs is a dollar that is not protecting Americans at the baggage screening gate. Mandatory full federalization would immediately put more than 20,000 new employees on the federal payroll and require administration of the entire array of support services needed for such a large complement of federal workers. Using private workers with established administrative infrastructures will put more dollars at the gate.

  - ✓ Produces tougher, more qualified baggage screeners. If the government doesn't have a choice in hiring screeners, there will be no competition and less incentive to produce tougher, more qualified screeners. Expanding options for airports will put the toughest screeners possible at the screening check points.

  - ✓ Ensures flexibility to discipline or remove unqualified screeners. Permitting the use of contract employees will preserve the most flexibility and control for the federal security agency. The government needs the authority to replace unqualified individual screeners – or even an entire airport screening workforce that is not meeting the rigorous new security standards.

The attached talking points (1) relate to the aviation security legislation the President supports, and (2) make the case why it is important that the government have maximum hiring flexibility to ensure that we have the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening services available at airport security check points.

IMPROVING AVIATION SAFETY & SECURITY

The President urges swift bipartisan action on his comprehensive package to put in place tough new security measures to make our airports and our airplanes safer:

- ☑ Federalize airport security
- ☑ Significantly expand the Federal Air Marshal program
- ☑ Fortify cockpit doors to protect pilots and crews
- ☑ Put the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening on the front lines

- Expands the Federal Air Marshal program.
- Authorizes $500 million for cockpit/aircraft security.
- Creates a new Transportation Security Agency (TSA) housed at the Department of Transportation within three months and directs the new Agency to take over airline security screening.
- Gives the TSA the ability to contract with high quality private security companies to perform the screening function where it is safer and more effective.
- Ensures that the federal employees of the TSA supervise, manage, set standards, train and perform background checks for everyone involved in passenger and baggage screening.
- Requires a Federal law enforcement officer to be stationed at every screening location.
- Directs the TSA to improve the security of all airport areas with access to airplanes.

PUTTING THE TOUGHEST POSSIBLE BAGGAGE SCREENING ON THE FRONT LINES

- In the wake of September 11 we need to drastically improve the way passenger baggage is screened at airports. We need the toughest possible baggage screening at airport security check points.

- The federal control model proposed by the President mirrors the well regarded airline security systems in Europe, which are public/private partnerships with strong government oversight. In fact, in many of these systems, the national government chose to replace public security personnel with private contractors to improve security at their airports.

- H.R. 3150 puts control of aviation security with the agency that has the experience to get the job done – the Department of Transportation. DOT has a broad statutory mandate and nearly 35 years of operational experience. DOT also already has much of the necessary infrastructure in place to facilitate a smooth transition by providing transportation security inspections, enforcement and oversight while the new TSA gets up and running.

- H.R. 3150 gives the federal government a choice. It can choose to only hire federal workers or it can choose – on an airport-by-airport basis – to work with private contractors who demonstrate they can meet the tougher, and safer screening services mandated by the federal government. Under H.R. 3150:

  - ✓ The federal government will be responsible for baggage screening.
  - ✓ The federal government will oversee training of baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will conduct the background checks on baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will set rigorous standards and qualifications for baggage screeners.

- The President's plan to put the toughest possible baggage screeners at security check points is more effective than other plans because it is:

  - ✓ Quicker and more efficient. We need tough new baggage screeners on the job as quickly as possible. Allowing only federal workers to screen bags will require more than 20,000 new federal employees. Common sense dictates that creating a new workforce of more than 20,000 new federal workers will be a costly and lengthy process – precious time will be wasted that could be better spent screening bags. The 20,000 workers will also need to be assembled and trained from scratch, delaying the new security system for an undetermined period of time. It simply makes sense to allow some use of private companies that already have trained workers in place and to let the federal government concentrate on getting new security measures in place as quickly as possible.

  - ✓ Puts more resources at the screening gate – not in Washington bureaucracy. Not giving airports a choice in hiring will keep more money in Washington for administrative costs and other expenses – every dollar that stays in Washington for administrative costs is a dollar that is not protecting Americans at the baggage screening gate. Mandatory full federalization would immediately put more than 20,000 new employees on the federal payroll and require administration of the entire array of support services needed for such a large complement of federal workers. Using private workers with established administrative infrastructures will put more dollars at the gate.

  - ✓ Produces tougher, more qualified baggage screeners. If the government doesn't have a choice in hiring screeners, there will be no competition and less incentive to produce tougher, more qualified screeners. Expanding options for airports will put the toughest screeners possible at the screening check points.

  - ✓ Ensures flexibility to discipline or remove unqualified screeners. Permitting the use of contract employees will preserve the most flexibility and control for the federal security agency. The government needs the authority to replace unqualified individual screeners – or even an entire airport screening workforce that is not meeting the rigorous new security standards.

The attached talking points (1) relate to the aviation security legislation the President supports, and (2) make the case why it is important that the government have maximum hiring flexibility to ensure that we have the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening services available at airport security check points.

IMPROVING AVIATION SAFETY & SECURITY

The President urges swift bipartisan action on his comprehensive package to put in place tough new security measures to make our airports and our airplanes safer:

- ☑ Federalize airport security
- ☑ Significantly expand the Federal Air Marshal program
- ☑ Fortify cockpit doors to protect pilots and crews
- ☑ Put the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening on the front lines

- Expands the Federal Air Marshal program.
- Authorizes $500 million for cockpit/aircraft security.
- Creates a new Transportation Security Agency (TSA) housed at the Department of Transportation within three months and directs the new Agency to take over airline security screening.
- Gives the TSA the ability to contract with high quality private security companies to perform the screening function where it is safer and more effective.
- Ensures that the federal employees of the TSA supervise, manage, set standards, train and perform background checks for everyone involved in passenger and baggage screening.
- Requires a Federal law enforcement officer to be stationed at every screening location.
- Directs the TSA to improve the security of all airport areas with access to airplanes.

PUTTING THE TOUGHEST POSSIBLE BAGGAGE SCREENING ON THE FRONT LINES

- In the wake of September 11 we need to drastically improve the way passenger baggage is screened at airports. We need the toughest possible baggage screening at airport security check points.

- The federal control model proposed by the President mirrors the well regarded airline security systems in Europe, which are public/private partnerships with strong government oversight. In fact, in many of these systems, the national government chose to replace public security personnel with private contractors to improve security at their airports.

- H.R. 3150 puts control of aviation security with the agency that has the experience to get the job done – the Department of Transportation. DOT has a broad statutory mandate and nearly 35 years of operational experience. DOT also already has much of the necessary infrastructure in place to facilitate a smooth transition by providing transportation security inspections, enforcement and oversight while the new TSA gets up and running.

- H.R. 3150 gives the federal government a choice. It can choose to only hire federal workers or it can choose – on an airport-by-airport basis – to work with private contractors who demonstrate they can meet the tougher, and safer screening services mandated by the federal government. Under H.R. 3150:

  - ✓ The federal government will be responsible for baggage screening.
  - ✓ The federal government will oversee training of baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will conduct the background checks on baggage screeners.
  - ✓ The federal government will set rigorous standards and qualifications for baggage screeners.

- The President's plan to put the toughest possible baggage screeners at security check points is more effective than other plans because it is:

  - ✓ Quicker and more efficient. We need tough new baggage screeners on the job as quickly as possible. Allowing only federal workers to screen bags will require more than 20,000 new federal employees. Common sense dictates that creating a new workforce of more than 20,000 new federal workers will be a costly and lengthy process – precious time will be wasted that could be better spent screening bags. The 20,000 workers will also need to be assembled and trained from scratch, delaying the new security system for an undetermined period of time. It simply makes sense to allow some use of private companies that already have trained workers in place and to let the federal government concentrate on getting new security measures in place as quickly as possible.

  - ✓ Puts more resources at the screening gate – not in Washington bureaucracy. Not giving airports a choice in hiring will keep more money in Washington for administrative costs and other expenses – every dollar that stays in Washington for administrative costs is a dollar that is not protecting Americans at the baggage screening gate. Mandatory full federalization would immediately put more than 20,000 new employees on the federal payroll and require administration of the entire array of support services needed for such a large complement of federal workers. Using private workers with established administrative infrastructures will put more dollars at the gate.

  - ✓ Produces tougher, more qualified baggage screeners. If the government doesn't have a choice in hiring screeners, there will be no competition and less incentive to produce tougher, more qualified screeners. Expanding options for airports will put the toughest screeners possible at the screening check points.

  - ✓ Ensures flexibility to discipline or remove unqualified screeners. Permitting the use of contract employees will preserve the most flexibility and control for the federal security agency. The government needs the authority to replace unqualified individual screeners – or even an entire airport screening workforce that is not meeting the rigorous new security standards.

IMPROVING AVIATION SAFETY & SECURITY

The President urges swift bipartisan action on his comprehensive package to put in place tough new security measures to make our airports and our airplanes safer:

- ☑ Federalize airport security
- ☑ Significantly expand the Federal Air Marshal program
- ☑ Fortify cockpit doors to protect pilots and crews
- ☑ Put the toughest possible passenger and baggage screening on the front lines

- Expands the Federal Air Marshal program.
- Authorizes $500 million for cockpit/aircraft security.
- Creates a new Transportation Security Agency (TSA) housed at the Department of Transportation within three months and directs the new Agency to take over airline security screening.
- Gives the TSA the ability to contract with high quality private security companies to perform the screening function where it is safer and more effective.
- Ensures that the federal employees of the TSA supervise, manage, set standards, train and perform background checks for everyone involved in passenger and baggage screening.
- Requires a Federal law enforcement officer to be stationed at every screening location.
- Directs the TSA to improve the security of all airport areas with access to airplanes.

PUTTING THE TOUGHEST POSSIBLE BAGGAGE SCREENING ON THE FRONT LINES

- In the wake of September 11 we need to drastically improve the way passenger baggage is screened at airports. We need the toughest possible baggage screening at airport security check points.

- The federal control model proposed by the President mirrors the well regarded airline security systems in Europe, which are public/private partnerships with strong government oversight. In fact, in many of these systems, the national government chose to replace public security personnel with private contractors to improve security at their airports.
